Not illustrated. 1910 Excerpt: .from four States, the line being drawn rather more closely than is usual for cities of large size. In fact the subject is one of great complexity. We have a Commission which is certifying milk coming from about five sources. Then we have a Milk Commission which supplies pasteurized milk to babies. About 60 of our Market Milk is now pasteurized. The campaign which we have had for a better milk supply has met with a good deal of opposition, and the opposition spread very careless and misleading statements relative to various factors in the movement; and so, for about a year now, the laboratory has been undertaking the investigation of certain questions that have been raised. One of the things they are studying is methods of control of pasteurization, and I believe they will be ready to report at the fall meeting of the American Public Health Association the result of these studies. The studies that have been outlined to you here have been along the line of the multiplication of bacteria in milk, rather than of other peculiarities of milk. Milk is far from being right. We know relatively little of bacteria in milk, and yet the most definite conclusions have been announced and a most positive position has been taken by men who have drawn these conclusions. For instance, we know relatively little about the bacteria that are responsible for the diseases of infants. The finding of the tubercle bacillus in milk is...
