T. NORTON. About two years since, whilst on board of one of the Connecticut River Steam Boats, I observed a young well dressed colored man, whose appearance and manners particularly attracted my attention. There wa3 something unusual in his whole bearing, and had a favorable opportunity offered, I should have made inquiries respecting him. We soon reached Hartford, however, and I thought no more of him. A few months after the above occurrence, whilst attending a meeting at the office of the Connecticut AntiSlavery Society in H, a respectable gentleman of that city came to the door, evidently in haste and somewhat agitated, and enquired for Mr. B. After a short absence Mr. B. returned, and stated that the gentleman who had called him out, was under great anxiety on account of a young colored man who had been in his employ about three months, and who had just come to him in the deepest distress, confessing that he was a runaway slave, and stating that he had that moment seen his master and a noted slave dealer pass by, evidently in search of him and suspecting his residence. The gentleman and his family had become much interested in the young man, and were distressed at the thought of his being carried back into slavery. No time was to be lost, as Charles, (the name of the young man,) was confident he had been seen...
